2. Context and description of the assignment

At the global level, in 2015, the International Community adopted a new Sustainable Development Agenda, through 17 SDGs and 169 targets, including the SDG 16 <https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/sdg16>, which aims to promote peace, justice and strong institutions at all levels and that insist on the responsibility of states and governments to implement this engagements, but also on innovative approaches and positive change. In parallel, the Principles of Public Administration <http://www.sigmaweb.org/publications/principles-public-administration-eu-candidate-countries-and-potential-candidates.htm> have been developed by SIGMA in close co-operation with the European Commission to define detailed requirements for a well-functioning public administration in each of defined areas. ReSPA has also contributed to benchmarking and bench learning in the Western Balkan region with numerous analytical papers / comparative studies <https://www.respaweb.eu/11/library#respa-publications-and-research-18>.

Building strong, effective, and sustainable institutions, in particular in the public sphere, means to build transformative institutions that invest both in innovation and excellence as pillars for competitiveness. Innovation is about making things better in a variety of ways that leaves no one behind, through any idea that can be transformed into a simple solution that leads to new opportunities, new products, new services or new benefits; the production of new and even unprecedented jobs, markets and industries; the revitalization of existing businesses by making them more productive, efficient and effective; saving lives or improving their quality. Innovation supposed to create an enabler environment for the creativity and ingenuity of people, especially those who are well prepared to use their minds to find new solutions<sup>2</sup>.

And it cannot work without investing, in parallel, in excellence as the path to the overall performance of any given institution.

The European Union has made innovation and excellence as the cornerstone of its mission and mandate. If the Western Balkans need to be part of European Union and meet its vision and mandate, there are numerous reforms that need to be implemented in this Region, in particular building strong, effective and sustainable Public Institutions, Public Administration and Public Services which are among the vision, mandate and activities of the ReSPA.

This is the main reason why the ReSPA implements PA Awards in the Western Balkan, that aims to identify, evaluate, reward and promote innovative and best practices of Public Institutions in the Western Balkans that have contributed significantly and concretely to improving Public Institutions, Public Administration, Public Services, and Public Service Delivery.

ReSPA together with SIGMA/OECD has successfully run the Western Balkans PA Award in 2020. The purpose of the PA Award 2020 was to recognize and award initiatives, projects in the public administration in the WB region which have proven to be unique, effective, innovative and adaptive in the service delivery. The outbreak of Covid 19 pandemic had shift the focus towards innovative and good responses in service delivery in the context of crisis situation. Digitalization of the services has thus inevitably emerged as the central topic of all projects within competition. All projects in the competition have either upgraded or developed new digital service as a quick response to the needs of citizens, governments and businesses. All awarded projects strongly reflected the innovative side and the flexibility of public administration shown to the extent that could have not been expected.

The crises have not yet seen its end globally and it still has an impact on the provision of public services in the Western Balkans.

As the result of effects in public administrations caused by COVID 19 and associated changes in the societies the public service delivery changed. The main aspects of service delivery-accessibility, quality of services and digitalisation were all influenced. Regardless of the higher risk of disruption caused by pandemic there are examples of improved service delivery for citizens shown as acceleration in service delivery, increased user centric approach in designing and delivery of public services and as quality growth of the existing services.

Public institutions not only from the health sector had to adopt actions that shown continuity of operations in service delivery despite disruptions, commitment in making digital services a larger piece of their delivery, identified alternative employment modes or started using proactive methods of users engagement-all in the situation of diminished funding and instable workforce. These exceptional practices that entail not only the element of innovativeness in the times of crises but also of sustained care for the users and predicatable sustainability are in focus of the Pa Award 2022.
